Win a Prize for Your 'New American Dream'

Tuesday February 15, 2011

Do you think that owning your own home is rightly called the "American Dream"?

According to a recent survey of U.S. adults by Rent.com, it's a myth: an impressive 87% of respondents claim they no longer consider owning a home to be the most essential aspect of their American Dream.

Inspired by these results, Rent.com has launched a contest to find out what people across the country consider to be their "New American Dream," and they're offering some attractive prizes for the top entries, including a grand prize of a year's free rent (up to $10,000).

To enter, you must submit a one-minute video or 250-word essay describing your New American Dream no later than May 2, 2011. Visit the Rent.com contest page for complete rules and details and to submit your entry.
