Inman News today releases an annual report that highlights the real estate industry's 100 most influential people. This latest list of 100 leaders, who either work in the real estate industry or whose work impacts the real estate industry, includes brokers, technologists, trade group and multiple listing service representatives, government officials, journalists, economists, academics, consultants, and financial services executives.

The full "100 Most Influential Real Estate Leaders: 2009" report is available as a free download for Inman Premium Members, and the cost is $79 for non-members.

The 36-page report, in PDF format, includes photos, names, titles, company names and biographical information for the year's top leaders.
